

Sometimes, the moral of the story is the things that are terrifying and insurmountable are actually things you are prepared and capable of defeating. And sometimes powerful men are not actually that powerful.