

Acknowledgements

I am, in the first place, most grateful to the George C. Marshall Foundation and Research Library, of Lexington, Virginia, for permitting us to examine, copy, transcribe, and quote material in its Friedman Collection, and to its staff, whose cheerfulness and intelligence makes this library a model of what a research library should be.

I am also grateful to Jacques Guy — a modern Herakles or Sisyphus — for undertaking the immensely tedious task of typing the greater part of the text of item 1609 into the computer.

Henry Baird was very generous with OCR support and advice.

I am also indebted to the following for personal communications: A. H. Carter, III, Mrs. M. Carter, Prescott Currier, M. E. D’Imperio, James Gillogly, the late Martin Joos, Susan Hockey, Louis Kruh, Albert C. Leighton, Frank Lewis, Margaret Zimansky.

References

- Ba Baird, H. S. “Anatomy of a Versatile Page Reader,” IEEE Proceedings, Special Issue on OCR. July, 1992.
- Br Brumbaugh, Robert S. The World’s Most Mysterious Manuscript. Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 1978.
- C Clark, Ronald W. The Man Who Broke Purple: The life of the world’s greatest cryptologist, Colonel William F. Friedman. London: Weidenfeld and Nicholson, 1977.
- D1 D’Imperio, M. E. The Voynich Manuscript: An Elegant Enigma. Fort George G. Meade, Maryland: National Security Agency, 1978. (Reprinted by Aegean Park Press, Laguna Hills, California, c. 1980.)
- D2 D’Imperio, M. E., editor. “New Research on the Voynich Manuscript: Proceedings of a Seminar, 30 November 1976” Privately printed pamphlet, Washington, D.C., 1976.
- F E. S. Friedman. “ ‘The Most Mysterious Manuscript’ Still an Enigma.” Washington Post, Aug. 5, 1962, sec E, pp. 1, 5.
- K Kahn, David. The Codebreakers. New York: Macmillan, 1967.