

A detailed botanical illustration of a plant, possibly a species of Ranunculus or a similar herb. The plant features a central, slender stem that branches out towards the top. It has several green, lanceolate leaves with serrated margins. Five blue flowers are depicted: one at the top left, one at the top right, one in the middle left, and two at the bottom. The flowers have five petals and prominent stamens. The plant's root system is visible at the bottom, consisting of a central taproot and several fibrous roots. The illustration is surrounded by handwritten text in a historical script, likely Latin or German, which is partially obscured by the plant's branches. The text appears to be a description or a list of properties of the plant.